Jalosjos seeking absolute pardon

By Dana Z. Pazzibugue

FORMER LAMARQUE FORMER Jalosjos has asked President Macapagal-Arroyo to grant him an absolute pardon to allow him to again run for public office 12 years after he was convicted of raping an 11-year-old girl.

Although convicted of child rape by the Manila Regional Trial Court in December 1997 and sentenced to two life terms, the former representative of Zarbanga del Norte managed to work and win reelection in 1998 and 2001 even while behind bars.

He was only dropped from the rolls of the House of Representatives when the Supreme Court affirmed his guilt in 2002.

In June 2007, his Arroyo-convicted Jalosjos' sentence to 16 years, three months and three days, along with an

But price freeze may be lifted partially

By Ti Burgos
and Dana Z. Pazzibugue

MALACAÑANG Yesterday rejected the appeal of oil companies for a dialogue with President Macapagal-Arroyo on the possible recall of an executive order freezing fuel prices in Luzon, which remains in a state of calamity.

But Justice Secretary Agnes Devanadera indicated that the order may not be lifted in specific areas as the government and oil firms try to reach an agreement on a mutually acceptable response to the devastation wrought by massive storms.

"There may be a lifting (of the freeze order) in certain areas such that only specific local government units are covered. This is part of the response that was once in different forms," Devanadera said yesterday.

Ms. Arroyo's administration belied at the appeal for a dialogue with the President, saying fuel oil industry leaders should be content to air their concerns

LOS ANGELES—TO FIGHT FOR FRIEND King Manny Pacquiao, also really doesn't matter.

The Filipino boxing hero, gearing up for a world title clash with Puerto Rico's Miguel Cotto that could give Pacquiao yet another shot of boxing history, doesn't put much stock in those who say Cotto's superior size could prove too much.

"I have heard that a couple of times the past two years," Pacquiao said with a smile on Wednesday as reporters, photographers and TV cameras jammed Hollywood's MGM Grand boxing club to see him train.

After all, Pacquiao's most recent victories have come against bigger opponents. Already Oscar De La Hoya was past his prime when Pacquiao stopped him in the eighth round in December of 2008.

On May 2, Pacquiao knocked out Britain's Ricky Hatton in the second round of their junior welterweight clash.

"It's not about competing size, not about competing power," Pacquiao insisted. "Knowledge is power. You don't have knowledge, you don't have power."

Pacquiao handed Hatton his first defeat at junior welterweight. He claimed

MILF won't produce rebel leader

CITIZENSHIP CITY—AN IRRESISTIBLE is taking shape between the government and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF), with the latter rejecting a challenge to produce the rebel commander earlier accused by Interior Secretary Ronaldo Pardo of involvement in the abduction of P. Michael Sison.

On the phone yesterday with the Inquirer, MILF chief negotiator Minghag Iqbal said there was no warhead under the peace talks between the government and the separatist group for the latter to produce Ali Al Arzou or others among its most accused of criminal activities.

"It's complicated. He might be arrested if he shows up before the [Zarbanga del Norte] Crisis Management Committee. Besides, Pardo had said the government is participating along with the separatist group against Ali Arzou," Iqbal said, adding:

RP getting all of US aid—Teodoro

DEFENSE SECRETARY GILBERT TRUCONDO JR. and the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) have disputed a claim made by a party-list representative that the United States has decided to withhold $2 million in military aid to the Philippines next year because of the local military's alleged involvement in human rights violations.

He said he was having this on his last conversation with US Sen. Daniel Rostenko, chair of the US Senate appropriations committee, who agreed to increase foreign military assistance in the Philippines to around $43 million.

He said he was looking for an in-lane conversation with US Sen. Daniel Bump, chair of the 18 Senate-appropriations committee, who vowed to increase Bump's military assistance to the Philippines to around $40 million.

Colomares was standing in the entrance of the main dining parlor, said Page. Next Colomares asked the Philippines stood to lose $2 million in US military assistance next year, in addition to $2 million withheld this year, because of human rights concerns.

Philippines not just since three months but for years and decades. Colleagues told this was the case of US House Committee 2021 passed in July that stipulates that $2 billion worth of military aid by 2030 would not be released unless the Secretary of State reports to Congress that the Philippines had taken steps to address the report on extrajudicial killings of Filipino citizens. The United Nations reported on human rights.

According to Colleagues, Washington told them the situation

That is currently open for discussion of US officials and it's their judgment that counts here," he said.

In a statement, the EPA said the withholding of a $2-billion portion of US foreign military assistance to the Philippines was "not a new development."

EPA spokesman Ed Malaga explained that it was a combination of a conditionality linked to that part of the aid, the condition attached to that portion of the aid package had been omitted since the preceding part. Analysis:

Shape up to body beautiful

"When I told the world to watch me get my figure back after my second pregnancy, I was really confident that I could do it again."

In just less than 5 months of slimming program - she lost 20 pounds and 30.25 inches off her body. And this is only the beginning. Adreya Dawn Zulara-Laguarda is so back after another triumph over post-pregnancy weight gain.

"I was 163 pounds after giving birth to my second baby. Compared to my first post-baby body, I was 19 pounds heavier. But even then, I could already foresee that my weight loss would be manageable. All because of Marie France," Dawn says.

Last June 23, 2009, Dawn gave birth to her second baby Anya Madlen. A week after she was the talk of the town when her billboard for Marie France was posted with the tagline "I'll get my figure back again. Watch me!"

Determined and persistent to lose weight, Dawn got her results at Marie France. "First week, no long, I've lost 5 pounds now I couldn't believe it!" Dawn says.

But as she continued her treatments, a big problem arose. "With a wider range of treatments, I was so sure Marie France can help me. But I got a condition that I've been trying and hoping to get out of. It's related to my post-pregnancy - my gestational diabetes. Gestational diabetes was giving me a harder time to lose weight because the sugar accumulated in my body attracted water, which also attracted fat. That's why I've got water retention. So if I do the treatments for lymphatic drainage or lose water retention today, I'd regain it 24 hours after. To me, it seemed that my body was betraying me. It was very frustrating," Dawn says.

Some research studies have shown that gestational diabetes affects 4% of all pregnant women. Gestational diabetes starts during pregnancy when the body isn't able to make or use all the insulin it needs for pregnancy. This type of diabetes can cause difficulties in losing weight and even obesity.

Dawn could have easily quit. But she didn't. "What kept me going? It's really my kids. It's really the fact that I couldn't play with my son the way I used to. I couldn't even carry him up his legs with my own weight, my knees hurt, and I had a hard time moving around. Now my incentive is to normalize my family life," she shares.

The rising new Dawn

Experts reveal that with proper diet and exercise, a typical individual can usually lose just 2-5 pounds per month. And if a mother wouldn't be able to lose the excess weight in the first three months after giving birth, chances are, it will take 2-3 years longer. It's because once you're doing fat have deposited in your fatty areas, it's harder to lose them.

But with Marie France as a partner, Dawn has lost weight faster as her body started to function normally.

"20 pounds and 30.25 inches off in less than 5 months - what a fabulous start! I have curves again - a shapelier waist, reduced cellulite, and trimmer thighs. I love my slimmer body now because I'm much more confident, and I can look at myself in the mirror again!" Dawn shares in the ads. "People say, 'Pregnant As Not!' So, no sign for you can do it!"

For Dawn, only Marie France can make post-pregnancy weight loss - fast, safe and easy. "I feel so grateful that I'm undergoing these treatments. For the second time, Marie France has proven that it will not fail me!"

Like Dawn, you can slim down - fast and easy only at Marie France! Call now at 894-BODY (2639), Cebu (022) 233-7637 and Penang (043) 961-2981 for a FREE consultation.

No typhoon but expect rain, says weather bureau

By Alvin Papa and Jerome Rosing

THE COUNTRY MAY BE ENJOYING A reprieve from devastating typhoons, but it may be wary for Metro Manila, parts of Luzon and the Visayas through the weekend.

The northern monsoon is the reason for the rainy weather, according to the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA).

Fourteen flights to and from the Cagayan Valley and Tacloban City were canceled in the interim, leaving International Airport ground-bound because of bad weather caused by the northern monsoon.

The northern monsoon enters in the cold season which blowing in from the northern hemisphere beginning October in November and ending in March.

"The rainshowers we are getting is the result of the northern monsoon. There is no tropical cyclone affecting the country," said weather forecaster Joel Arana.

In the latest weather update, Pagasa said Central and northern Luzon, the Visayas and Mindanao will experience cloudy skies with scattered rainshowers and isolated thunderstorms.

These conditions could develop into widespread rain over the eastern sections of these areas which may trigger landslides and landslides, Pagasa said.

Manila, Iloilo, Cebu and Tagaytay will have cloudy skies with rainshowers on Friday and partly cloudy skies in the afternoon with isolated rainshowers from Saturday in Morning Pagasa said.

Temperatures in Metro Manila will range from 22 degrees to 32 degrees Celsius.

The waters of Manila Bay will be moderate to high, the weather bureau said.

Tagaytay, Cebu and Iloilo will have partly cloudy skies with isolated rainshowers. Forecast temperatures for Iloilo will range from 15 degrees to 24 degrees Celsius.

Tagaytay City will have cloudy weather with rainshowers and thunderstorms from Friday to Saturday.

Bolao City, Misaki City and Tacloban City will also have cloudy weather with rainshowers on Friday and mostly cloudy weather with scattered rainshowers and thunderstorms on Saturday and Sunday.

Cagayan de Oro, Zamboanga and Zamboanga City will have mostly cloudy weather with scattered rainshowers and thunderstorms until the weekend.

Pagasa warned residents living in the coastal areas of northern Luzon and southern Luzon against big waves because of strong easterly winds associated with the northern monsoon.

Authority said two Delta Pacific Air flights to Singapore, Cagayan, and another flight to Cagayan, Iloilo, were canceled. Consequently, the return trips to Manila from these places were also canceled.

AdBoard to help typhoon victims

BAGUIO CITY—THE PHILIPPINE ADVERTISING BOARD will donate all proceeds of the Philippine Advertising Congress (PAC) to be held here this month at the Lake Baguio Resort to typhoon victims in Baguio and Benguet.

The AdBoard saved the congress venue from Baguio to Subic after heavy rains damaged by Tropical Storm "Pepeng" induced landslides and floods that damaged roads leading to the summer capital.

Instead of organizing it during the congress here, Mayor Fernando Herrera Jr. said he asked his team of the event's profile to be given in Benguet.

He said the disaster here brought the moon, smog the damage this rain and landslides brought to the vegetable and cut flower industries.

Struggling La Trinidad town had the most fatalities among towns hit by Pepeng, he said.

"I did not expect all the profits to be sent this way" he said as a Christmas season continues.

The AdBoard's website for the 21st PAC said the disaster represents "100 percent of the Asian financial crisis other proceeds in the PAC's donation to (the Philippine Standard) and Cross-Border Chapter for the recovery of Benguet."

Bureau said AdBoard officials would be sending the proceeds to the city on Nov. 20.

The AdBoard also asked Benguet to attend the 24th Congress opening on Nov. 18.

In the opening ceremonies, the mayor will lead a traditional pagong prayer for the opening ceremony that will be followed by a dance number by the Amas of Subic and by guests of the Goldland, the congress website said.

"I was asked to formally welcome the delegates to Baguio going to Subic. It was a recognition. It sends the signal that this is all the PAC Congress in Baguio which would be regarded as Baguio," Herrera said.

He said the city will host the 20th-21st Asia Golf Tournament, as well as the annual conventions of civil engineers and other safety seminars.

Bare nominees, Comelec tells party-list groups

PARTY-LIST GROUPS SEEKING TO PARTICIPATE in the 2010 elections should be prepared to make public the names of their nominees, the Commission on Elections (Comelec) said yesterday.

Noting that it is the parties, and not individual candidates, that are being voted on, Comelec Chair Jose Melo said the people are entitled to know who the party-list nominees are.

The nominees might not even belong to the sector that the party-list group purports to represent, he said.

Otherwise, the poll body would nullify the names of the nominees, Melo said.

According to Comelec Resolution No. 11, dated May 3 last issued only pending the list of nominees should be submitted to the poll body no later than March 25, 2010. Each group should have no less than five nominees.

The resolution also gave party-list groups between Nov. 20 and midnight of Dec. 1 to file their "manifestation of intent to participate" in the 2010 polls.

Although he did not say when the list of nominees would be made public, Melo said the Comelec would make sure that there would be enough time for the public and other groups to scrutinize the list.

"We will see how we can make it mandatory for the party-list groups to come out with the names of their nominees in public. We are looking at having an immediate resolution," Melo said.

In the 2007 elections, it took a ruling from the Supreme Court to compel the Comelec to allow the names of the party-list nominees, which was done just 19 days before election day.

Party-list groups critical of the Ayrao administration had claimed that almost a dozen of the accredited groups were "misleading voters" that allegedly received funds from the government, as many leading nominees who were government officials approved by the President.

According to Resolution No. 11, a party-list nominee should be a natural-born citizen of the Philippines; a registered voter; a resident of the country for a period of not less than one year; able to read and write; and a bona fide member for at least 10 days before election day of the party or organization which he seeks to represent.

The nominee must also be at least 25 years old on the day of the election. He or she should belong to the marginalized and under-represented sectors, the economic sector, indigenous, political party or coalition for order or reform, and is able to contribute to the formulation and enactment of appropriate legislation that would benefit the nation as a whole.

More than 300 groups have filed for party-list accreditation. Their names are still being listed by the two divisions of the commission. Some 25 groups that were earlier delisted by the Comelec also have pending motions for re-accreditation.

The Commission was under 20 percent of the seats in the House of Representatives for party-list groups.

8th Annual Roche Asian Oncology Forum

November 6-7, 2005
The Mactan Shangri-La, Cebu City

The annual Roche Asian Oncology Forum will be held in the Philippines for the first time. Leading cancer specialists from China, Korea, Taiwan, Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia, Hong Kong, Australia and the Philippines will gather to discuss advancements in cancer care and treatment from both Asian and Western perspectives.

Bridge collapse disrupts supply of fuel, says solon

DAVANGAS CITY—THE COLLAPSE of a major bridge here at the height of Typhoon "Sara" last Oct. 31 has disrupted the supply of fuel, plastic products, cement, flour and other grains to Metro Manila, a congressman told.

Rep. Howard Baker (R-Me.) said he has reported the situation to President Margaret Aron.

Manaus and the collapse of the Bridge of Prosperity has all but stopped the transport of 70 percent of Equatorial petroleum gas supply from refineries in the province to the Amazon.

The said cargo truck had to travel 20 kilometers more to Metro Manila as a result of the bridge collapse.

The fuel depot of Philippine Airlines in Kauswagan, Zamboanga, here also suffered as a result of the bridge collapse. The transport of fuel from the depot, which supplies 30 percent of all aviation fuel used by local airlines, was also disrupted.

The supply of plastic resin, used in the manufacture of plastic products, was also designed.

Two planes of San Miguel Corp. and Pan-Am also could not deliver fuel and other goods as a result of the bridge collapse.

The destruction of the bridge, the congressman said, rendered half of the population of the several districts (including Kansas City and the towns of St. Joe, St. Bernard, St. Louis, Kansas and Liberty) inaccessible.

A state and his was filed when their son fell with the ladder.

Engineer Winifredo Olvera, of the Department of Public Works and Highways (Department of Public Works and Highways Engineering District, said debris carried by strong current in the Calabanga River slammed into the center post of the bridge, causing its collapse.

Oliver said the bridge was 45 years old and built during the administration of the late Governor Fred McMane. Marvyn Brill, Lincoln, Secretary Southern Union

CHARGES BASED ON DISSATISFIED PATIENT'S COMPLAINT

NBI files 4 cases vs Belo

By Julia M. Acorda

THE NATIONAL BUREAU OF Investigation yesterday filed criminal cases against Dr. Vicki Belo and two doctors of the Belo Medical Group (BMG) after a former patient complained that the nearly dead after undergoing butt enhancement surgery in Belo's clinic.

Belo, Dr. Renaldo Caporaso and Dr. Peter de Guzman were all charged with reckless imprudence resulting in serious physical injuries.

On top of this, Belo was also charged with sexual, rape, and [unlawful] labor, deception or misleading advertisement under the Consumer Act.

The cases were based on a complaint filed against Belo and company by Jennifer Evaristo, a housewife, who said she developed no infection after Caporaso injected hyaluronic acid into her buttocks in 2005.

The NBI filed the charges in Evaristo's behalf after its investigation showed that hyaluronic acid is not a permanent skin filler.

Possible for 'acrolein'

"Sample specimens taken from [Belo] was submitted by the Forensic Chemistry Division and yielded positive results for acrolein and put," it said.

In her affidavit, Nacio said she decided to undergo butt augmentation surgery after Belo allegedly assured her that the procedure was "perfectly safe."

The surgery was performed by Caporaso but Nacio said she was dissatisfied with the results as her skin was bigger than the other. In 2005, she underwent a correction of procedure, this time performed by De Guzman.

In May this year, Nacio said she was admitted to St. Luke's Medical Center due to pain in her buttocks. Doctors later found out that she had developed an infection because of the hyaluronic acid.

While in St. Luke's, the housewife's lungs, and her chest had to undergo an operation to get the hyaluronic acid out of her buttocks.

"There is not for the timely medical intervention, she could have died as a result of [the] infection caused by hyaluronic acid," the NBI said.

According to the bureau, they charged Belo with sexual for "misrepresentation in Belo that hyaluronic acid is perfectly safe when it is not."

Deceptive advertisement

The commercial doctor in the case, the NBI added, was likewise liable for deceptive advertisement because she claimed that hyaluronic acid was perfectly safe to use in butt augmentation procedures.

It explained that the charge of rape was due to Belo's alleged practice of not using official receipts to her patients.

The three doctors, meanwhile, were liable for reckless imprudence because "they

MEL LOPEZ
POLITICS and PRINCIPLES

Highlights the mission of Mel Lopez to regain freedom, justice and democracy for daring martial law—attacking President Ferdinand Marcos' rule for committing "three cardinal sins" (the three K's) against the people—criminality, bourgeoisie and fanaticism (corruption, lying, and betrayal of public trust).

As Manila Mayor, Mel Lopez made record achievements, and stood his ground that gambling in any form is evil and that nothing could make up for the damage gambling could inflict upon the morals of the people, especially the youth. He closed the casinos and jai-alai and was jailed for it.

Because of his anti-gambling stance, Mel Lopez had to forgo the monthly P4.5 million financial help that PAGCOR was giving.

Mel questioned the constitutionality of P.D. 824 creating Metro Manila Commission and petitioned the Supreme Court for the suspension of local legislative bodies of 4 cities and 13 municipalities in Metro Manila. And to abolish the MMC.

In 1984, as an Assemblyman, Mel Lopez moved from streets to plazas, from colleges to universities, to denounce the abuses of the undemocratic Marcos regime and urge the people to liberate the nation from oppressive martial rule.

Nancy Aquino personally asked Mel Lopez to run for Mayor in the '80 elections, citing the importance that an individual with unquestionable integrity and loyalty to the opposition should carry the party banner in the crucial political contest in Manila.

The Filipino people's glorious quest culminated with the world famous EDSA Revolution—a testament to the heroism of Filipinos and their commitment to freedom and democracy.

Suzuki showcases SX4-FCV at Tokyo Motor Show

Suzuki Swift Plug-In Hybrid also on display

As one of only a handful of integrated mobility companies worldwide, Suzuki Motor showcased a full range of alternative fuel vehicles at the recently concluded Tokyo Motor Show, bringing together automobiles, motorcycles, power-assisted vehicles, and electric wheelchairs under the theme "suzuki for a big future." Suzuki highlighted its future-oriented vehicles to realize its long lifestyle possibilities.

Suzuki SX4-FCV: The Suzuki SX4-FCV continues a high-performance fuel cell with a high gross on 100-hp hydrogen tank. Instead of a battery pack, the SX4-FCV has a lightweight hydrogen tank that provides driving performance by converting energy during brake application and using it to reduce fuel cell load during acceleration. With an estimated driving range of 200km, the Suzuki SX4-FCV is a first-of-its-kind, zero-emission car with seating capacity for 5 adults. Already certified for on-road testing by the Japanese government, the Suzuki SX4-FCV is being modified for commercial product form.

Suzuki Swift Plug-In Hybrid: The Suzuki Swift Plug-In Hybrid is designed primarily to be driven on electric power for short distances of about 20km daily. For short distance travel, the Suzuki Swift Plug-In Hybrid is powered by a battery that charged from an ordinary household electric socket. When the battery runs low, a lightweight gasoline-fueled generator kicks in to recharge the battery. The back-up power electric motor takes the stress of being connected to having to search for a charging stand when the battery runs out. This EcoBoost Hybrid has a 10 percent seating capacity.

Suzuki Research & Development: Tinkered with "creating a new value for the next generation," Suzuki R&D focuses on developing value-packed products that will meet the changing lifestyles of the future. Applying this philosophy to its development efforts, Suzuki R&D covers a wide range of the latest advances in such fields as energy, environment, communications, information and control applications.

CLEVELAND—MURKIN: OF alleged US serial killer Anthony Sowell last apparently complained about a lack of food for years, but many believed it was more than a simple dietary need.

SOWELL

The 34-year-old convicted rapist was assigned Wednesday on a string of transfer charges to level 10, the maximum security prison, where he is up to 11 bodies mounted at his home in Cleveland, Ohio.

Local residents last food said he would go on his independent investigation, they only only complaints about the small state food kitchen the dietary "Residents are mad and they have every right to be mad," he told AFP.

Food said he often called the public health department about food and said "I am not a foodie, but I am a foodie."

"I know that with that not health department, I am not a foodie, but I am a foodie," he said. "I am not a foodie, but I am a foodie."

At the assignment hearing, defense lawyers argued unsuccessfully that Sowell should be granted a full trial, but a court decision in the case was a preliminary order to the state to conduct a full trial.

Prosecutors were adamant the alleged serial killer, who has already served a 15-year term for a 1991 rape, should continue to be kept in custody.

"The state believes he is a dangerous person, a danger to the public," assistant county prosecutor Brian Murphy said in court.

A full trial would have been granted, but a court decision in the case was a preliminary order to the state to conduct a full trial.

"After 20 years on the bench, this is not on my list of the most serious acts of judges," he said. "I am not a foodie, but I am a foodie."

The local residents came to light last Thursday when police went to Sowell's home to arrest him on unrelated rape and sexual charges for a September attack on a woman who arrived.

Sowell was not in his home when police discovered the decomposing bodies of 10 women and two dogs in the house and yard.

Police were reportedly found sitting in the back garden with other residents in the house. Residents searched for more bodies and a skull at the property on Tuesday, bringing the total number of victims to 11.

"We have located 10 bodies and a single leg," Cleveland police spokesman Thomas Sticho told AFP. "It is not known yet if the skull is on 11th Avenue."

The first six bodies were all from identified African-American women and men, and were found in the back garden and in the house. Residents searched for more bodies and a skull at the property on Tuesday, bringing the total number of victims to 11.

None of the victims have yet been formally identified and no one in the neighborhood has been charged with the crime. Residents searched for more bodies and a skull at the property on Tuesday, bringing the total number of victims to 11.

Sowell was arrested on Saturday after a local resident reported him walking down the street and looking pale. He did not say anything to police.

Neighbors and family had advised Sowell years at the relatively low level house in large St. Louis, where he had been since 2005, of his being released from prison.

Police and they planned to search vacant buildings within a half-mile radius of home of Sowell, looking for additional bodies.

Sowell's case will now be forwarded to a grand jury to face a possible death penalty if found guilty.

A world first: Miracle Aussie baby beats rare brain condition

MELBOURNE—A "MIRACLE" AUSTRALIAN baby has become the first person cured of a rare and deadly brain-molding condition after doctors, guided by an experimental drug tested only on mice, kept the child alive.

The child, known only as "Baby Z," was being treated with a drug that was being tested on mice. The child was being treated with a drug that was being tested on mice.

"We are looking at her now and she is just an adorable mouse... she has defied every body," her mother, who cannot be named for legal reasons, said.

Baby Z started having seizures within 48 hours of her birth in May 2008, among her family to appeal to her mother's doctor to help her live the previously impossible condition which affects just one in a million Australians.

"There was courage and there was death... we spent for courage," the mother said. "If she wasn't cured, she would be a very good mouse."

Baby Z's doctor, Dr. William A. Gattuso, discovered an experimental drug which had been successfully used on mice by Germany's Gattuso Schwann, her husband, who had been tested on mice.

As Schwann considered his own work of the experimental drug Gattuso in Melbourne, doctors were in a race against time to get the child approved from the hospital and a court order clearing the use, with Baby Z succumbing by the time.

"The team... managed to get the drug from the lab to the hospital in about five weeks."

"The response was just amazing," he said.

"We can now see it in the brain for the first time in the history of mankind. It has the potential to revolutionize all of medicine."

Baby Z's development has been slowed by the brain damage she suffered from the seizures, and Schwann said she would need a 100% seizure-free day for the rest of her life.

But for mother and the baby now 10 months old, had started speaking and was physically active.

"Every day I put her in bed and I tell her, 'Look at that every day and just think, 'Wow,' she said."

Paraguayan president dismisses military chiefs

ASUNCION—PARAGUAYAN PRESIDENT Fernando Lugo dismissed the country's three top military commanders on Wednesday, a day after denying rumors of a possible coup amid growing opposition to his presidency.

Lugo explained the decision by saying that he was not a soldier, a statement from the Armed Forces general staff, in his last day of the top military command since he was sworn in a year and a half ago. He made no comment about the decision.

A left-leaning former Roman Catholic bishop, Lugo won the presidency last year, ending more than 60 years of rule by the conservative Colorado Party.

Opposition leaders have increased criticism of Lugo in recent days, accusing him of failing to curb drug crime and calling for an investigation into accusations of improper land sales allegedly involving a presidential aide.

On Tuesday Lugo denied the threat of a military coup, saying that he was not a soldier and that he was not a soldier.

According to Paraguayan media reports, the military shake-up may mean that Lugo is personally overseeing the country's high-ranking military officials and meeting with opposition leaders over the weekend.

Iran protesters brave police beatings

BEIRUT, LEBANON—IRAN'S BELEAGUERED OPPOSITION movement struggled to sustain itself on Wednesday, as tens of thousands of protesters braved police beatings and clouds of tear gas on the sidelines of a major, government-sponsored anti-American rally.

The protests—in Tehran and several other cities—were the opposition's largest since showing in protest two months and more on the 30th anniversary of the seizure of the US Embassy in Iran, an event that was a catalyst for both Iran and the United States. Although a large force of police officers bore back and scattered many of them, the protesters could test on their ability to openly challenge the government despite a series of such beatings from all levels of Iran's conservative establishment.

Iran's new government authorities seemed to grudgingly concede that the opposition had—for the first time—disrupted the annual anti-American rally. The official IRNA news agency reported in mid-afternoon that "tens of thousands" of protesters were beating the opposition's signature green color, but gathered in front of the officers and chanted "Death to the dictator" and other anti-government slogans.

At the same time, a new threat emerged, with many protesters claiming that Iranian police were using tear gas to disperse the protesters. The Iranian government, which has a long history of using tear gas to disperse protesters, said it could be used against "those who are beating the color." The Iranian government said it could be used against "those who are beating the color."

Obama released his own statement on Wednesday in mark the anniversary of the embassy takeover, repeating his appeals to start beyond the new Iranian nuclear program. The statement expressed sympathy for Iran's opposition movement and suggested that Iran was moving on to a life beyond the nuclear program. The statement said that the opposition movement was Iran's nuclear solution.

"The world continues to hope when it sees potential for the future and their ongoing pursuit of universal rights," the statement said of the Iranian people.

There were reports of several deaths in Tehran on Wednesday's protests, including some outside Tehran, and many injuries.

One young man who has been leading anti-government protests in Tehran Square seemed to be the latest victim. He said: "One day we came out and it's our day, another day they suppress us. Today we did not get to have our day, but it was good enough that we brought them into the square." AFP

BPinoy Real Thrills makes long-distance "pasalubong" possible for Overseas Pinoy

Overseas Filipinos can now send "pasalubong" to their loved ones every time they remit through BPinoy at BPI Express Remittance Center (BREC) or any of its remittance partners. This is made possible through the BPinoy Real Thrills Program, an automated rewards program that gives equivalent credits for remittance transactions.

"BPinoy understands the Extra Pinoy need to connect with their loved ones in the Philippines. BPinoy Real Thrills enables Extra Pinoy to bring joy to their families even when they are far away by sending them "pasalubong" for free," says Corrie S. Tan, BPI Senior Vice President and Group Head of the Overseas Banking and Domestic Services Group.

The Real Thrills program is BPI's rewards program for its clients. The program is active all throughout the bank's network of services from credit cards, savings accounts, and even loans. The BPinoy Real Thrills program specifically caters to Overseas Filipinos.

BPI's mainline partner for the BPinoy Real Thrills program is the well-loved Pinoy fast-food chain, Jollibee. Depending on credit accumulation, the BPinoy beneficiary can redeem generic meals such as a Jollibee spaghetti, 2-pcs. Chickenjoy with rice, and 2-pcs. Burger Steak with rice from any Jollibee branch nationwide.

The BPinoy Real Thrills Program utilizes the power of technology to automatically calculate accumulated credits once the remitter has completed registration eligibility requirements online at www.bpinoythrills.com. The headliner of the instant alerts Overseas Filipinos to send their surprise "pasalubong" to their families at their own convenience. The system also alerts the beneficiary via SMS that they can now claim their free Jollibee meals.

Valid remittance transactions include credits to any BPI, BPI Family Savings Bank or BPI Direct account (otherwise referred to as CTA), domestic delivery, and branch pickup transactions for non-CTA CTA remittance made through BREC offices generate higher credits than being paid close to the BPinoy Real Thrills.

This program is valid until March 15, 2010. To learn more about the BPinoy Real Thrills program and register, visit www.bpinoythrills.com.

Bangko Sentral keeps rates unchanged

Pump-priming still needed to boost growth

By Michelle V. Sison

FOR THE THIRD CONSECUTIVE time, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas has maintained its policy rates at historic lows in the belief that the economy still needed a boost from a low-interest rate environment to fully recover from the adverse impact of the second global recession.

Emerging from the policy interest meeting of the Monetary Board of the central bank, Governor Alexander Amano said in a briefing yesterday that the existing policy rates were still deemed appropriate at the moment.

"Keeping the policy rates steady will help support domestic demand, including the construction efforts of the government, and economic activity in the near term," Amano said.

The decision of the Monetary Board not to touch the overnight borrowing rate kept it at 4 percent. The overnight lending rate was also maintained at a historic low of 6 percent. The BSP usually keeps a spread of 2 percentage points between its overnight borrowing and lending rates.

In response to the drag caused by the global economic downturn on emerging markets like the Philippines, the BSP implemented a series of policy rate cuts (starting 200 basis points from 9 percent in 2008 to 4 percent in 2009).

The objective of the rate reductions was to influence banks to also cut their lending rates, thereby encourage borrowings by households and companies to boost consumption and investments, monetary officials said.

Since the policy rate-setting meeting in August, however, the BSP moved from the rate reduction given the early signs of a global economic recovery. In the second quarter, the local economy grew 1.5 percent, slightly outperforming from the 0.6-percent growth in the first quarter.

Nevertheless, the central bank said it did not have to raise interest rates, arguing that the economy still needed a lift to accelerate its relatively slow growth.

In the same press briefing, BSP Deputy Governor Nestor A. Guingona said inflation was projected to average at 3.28 percent this year and 4.32 percent in 2010, well within the official inflation targets set by the BSP.

The central bank wants to limit inflation to a range of 2.3-4.3 percent this year and 3.5-5.5 percent in 2010. For 2011, Guingona said inflation was projected at 3.4 percent.

Since economic have boosted the central bank's focus on monetary policy, allowing it could actually reduce its policy rates some time to allow a much faster growth for the economy.

In response, Guingona said the central bank could not simply be aggressive in reducing its policy rates without taking into account factors that could cause inflationary pressures.

"We are already seeing signs of improvement in the global and domestic economies. Prudent measures must be taken to improve and help manage inflationary pressures. These are building blocks of demand promotion, and so the BSP needs to be forward looking by monitoring possible buildup of inflationary pressures," Guingona said.

The central bank official said the monetary policy rates were already enough to allow growth without causing inflationary spiral.

RP poultry company shows the way for Asean

By Roger Po
Contributor

IN JANUARY 1992, ASEAN members signed the Singapore Declaration, which became the heart and soul of Asean Free Trade Area, a comprehensive program of tariff reduction in the region.

Over the years, the initial program of tariff reduction evolved and under "plus plus" activities were initiated.

This included efforts to eliminate anti-trade barriers, harmonization of customs procedures, valuation, procedures and development of common product classification standards.

However, agricultural products and commodities like rice, among others, were included in the agreement.

General exceptions however, were products deemed by Asean members necessary for the protection of national security, public morals, human, animal, plant life and health, artistic, historic or archaeological value.

Thus, the clock is ticking. Asean members have until 2013 to reduce the tariff levels to zero to 5 percent.

The final tariff is scheduled to be reduced to that level starting January next year and every

Flying V answers car owners' call for help

Oil firm also on a campaign to make entrepreneurs out of jeepney drivers

By Amy K. Nicas

IT HAS BEEN A MONTH SINCE typhoon and flooding put many parts of Luzon under water, yet independent oil player Flying V Philippines continues to reach out to those who were affected by the disaster flooding. Flying V started with just three floating retail packages—over 50,000 were brought to the water's and northern parts of Metro Manila—then went on to give 1,000 car owners a complete oil change package last Oct. 2 and 3.

With the Oplan Balik Andar program, Flying V and Chevrolet Corp. had sought to help private motorists pay their flood-stricken cars back on the road.

Flying V expanded this program by giving a "stronghold fuel-out package" to 1,000 jeepney drivers and operators last Oct. 24 and 25. The independent oil firm had signed a memorandum of agreement with 1-800, the party list organization representing the transport sector, to allow the members of the transport group to send themselves to lubricants under the relief program.

With the agreement, Flying V had made available its designated facilities on 75-hour packages consisting of fueling and lubricating oil, upon the certification of 1-800 that the driver was a member and a typhoon victim.

The package currently costs P1,247.76, but qualified drivers were asked to pay only P200. "It is recognized that many of the vehicles used by the transport groups had been grounded as a result of the flooding caused by typhoon Ondoy and Peping, and since its outgo needed servicing before they can be safely put back in operation," Flying V said. "It is also expected that the cost of an extensive fueling and lubricating program are quite expensive, which prevented many in the transport sector from immediately undertaking such servicing and restoring their livelihood endeavours," the company added in a statement.

People from the program were guided into a Typhoon Fund, which Flying V and 1-800 had used for joint typhoon relief and rehabilitation programs.

According to Flying V, the reason was able to raise more than P500,000 for the rehabilitation program aimed at helping jeepney drivers become small-scale entrepreneurs.

The discussion still being toward use with 1-800, said Flying V spokesperson Joyce Cruz, but the idea is to give jeepney drivers a small-scale business, such as selling lubricants, glasses and jeepney accessories.

Recently Flying V also joined a major rehabilitation activity with ABS-CBN Super Kapamilya in Angeles, where a medical mission, "Bagay Palapa," and a "feeding the poor" were conducted.

As Flying V aims high to help the public, likewise—the mission aims of the company—has been actively supporting the United Nations.

Lubricant was supposed to make in the distribution of relief goods in Northern Luzon for its flood and typhoon needs.

"Flying V will continue to extend its arms, since by providing quality fuels and services, with a network of almost 800 outlets nationwide, Flying V continues to drive its way to people," the company said.

JEOPHY drivers, owners of cars damaged by "Ondoy" and "Peping" get needed assistance from Flying V.

Modern food exchange rises

CITY OF MANILA—TOUTED AS THE first, largest and most modern food exchange and cooperative business enterprise, the North Food Exchange (NFE) of Bulacan had recently a memorandum of agreement for the province's big cooperatives and small-medium entrepreneurs at the Manila International Hotel.

The Hongkong-Ping Anceco, the second of a series of conferences generating the economic potential of the NFE, highlighted updates on the design of the project's initial phase. It is a joint venture of the provincial government of Bulacan and the Southern Asian Commodities and Food Exchange Inc. (SACFI).

Phase One of the SFE includes three major buildings that will host a wet market, services and livestock products, processed food and groceries, books and magazines, as well as perfumes, shoes and fashion for key retailers.

These modern structures, designed to be fully operational early in 2010, will also feature Asian and local jewelry and Korean and Japanese products, courtesy of Bulacan's foreign partners and investors.

The Hongkong-Ping Anceco featured exhibits by MTRC's strategic business partners, including security technology giant Hikvision, technology solutions provider Inpro of the UK, video agricultural marketing company IC20vision.com, and cooperative marketing giant store network Koop Mart.

Pursuing the development updates, Bulacan chair Josefin Dela Cruz, a former governor of Bulacan, urged the over 1,000 attendees to join the Ping-Anceco Express of the SFE, the also extended cooperation of their role in creating a new economy that "inspires from the grassroots."

The fragrance comes with the top notes of fresh cedar, blends the dry hints of rose from China and Morocco, and light and floral mandarin.

On social occasions, the fragrance is not only used along with jewelry pieces. The woody elements come from natural notes from Haiti and perfume houses.

Other key ingredients are vetiver and cedar of Lebanon from Laos, citrus flowers from Spain, the woody and intense sandalwood, and balsamic notes.

It is a refreshing natural scent, yet sensual and deep.

Bazaar season brings back the joys of Christmas shopping

By John Ramirez
Contributor

WITH THE GLOOM OF TWO-BILL DISASTERS named "Gloam" and "Spring," we are facing the prospect of a dry Christmas. Since those events by the calamities are reducing their lives, many are faced with the dilemma of whether or not to come down their Christmas celebration.

But since the economy is a play of forces, a dynamic between supply and demand, the only way we could secure quickly is by keeping it vibrant and alive.

One weekend, around with a P1,000 bill, I decided to do the round of Christmas shopping. The rule of thumb, just like in any shopping spree, is to look around and see how deep, and practice restraint: from buying the first thing that you see.

Tejan Province and something organic

Over at Market Sports Club, it was a Sunday filled with something fresh. I grabbed a copy of April's "Mandarin" book, "Mandarin." I've known April back in college and when she started working for the then-Gilbertson-owned Manila Times while moonlighting as editor-in-chief to Jerry J. Grant's "Mandarin." She has accomplished so much, including her own "Mandarin Living magazine," leading a TV show getting married and writing in South of France, having a baby and suggesting a lifetime around the way in her first book, she chose her busy and successful career of being a full-time of writer when she decided to leave a highly successful career in publishing for a new life with her family in Manila in December. To read, log on to www.mandarinbooks.com and to know more about this new book, it is the new book for a discount.

I also met a couple named Fern and Rita Blumstein who are doing handmade jewelry in various items—jewelry with silk, people with jewelry in glass, and the last part of it. They raised their venture The First Garden (www.thefirstgarden.com) and they sell their jewelry for only P100. They gave me the jewelry in small but beautiful, unique, and beautiful.

Bautista graduated from De La Salle University with a degree in BS Commerce, major in Management of Financial Institutions. She also has a degree from the Philippine School of Business Administration. Both degrees have earned her well in the very competitive, entrepreneurial field. From merchandising and operations, to branding.

Spicing up

How does Bautista spice up her multifaceted lifestyle? She chooses to splurge, at times on her wardrobe for those no-punch, an orange raincoat, the inclusion, paired with grape tee, or two-in-one pantsuits.

She puts a twist to a classic black trench by pairing it with brocade skirt, and includes an otherwise minimalist number with-chic jacket.

Bautista's husband describes her style as "sassy luxury," a term he coined to describe her classic taste.

New ventures

Bautista and Marcelo have a new venture—a leather fashion retail called Stone-to-keep up with existing market and to be on par with the international market. It is a joint of goods for those that a Filipino brand can do it.

Bautista's schedule includes more than, Getty checking, looking for the best, attending Mass, with some evening classes in. With this said, her typical day is peace and easy-going, relaxed and comfortable.

This entrepreneurial couple lives like everyone wants to, needs a piece of her, but she is clear and firm in her priorities—family time is her family.

Spending time with her children, seeing them off to school, and just being thankful to have their mother next to her, as the working class in a class, she looks forward to laughing and with her husband, the perfect way to end a beautiful day.

Bench, Human and Kashieca combine sex and celebrity for winning formula

Fashion show becomes fan screamfest

By Rita T. Vergara

STICKING TO A TRIED-and-tested formula that has made it one of the country's leading mass-market brands, Bench, with kindred labels Human and Kashieca, mixed fashion with just the right dose of sex and celebrity to delight weekend shoppers at the recently concluded Philippine Fashion Week.

With SM Mall of Asia's new venue, Bench and company paraded some of their hottest celebrity models—Gerald Anderson, Kim Chiu, Dingdong Dantes, Coco Martin, Jackson Dela, Isiah Duen and Aiko Garcia—wearing the brand's sultry and spring-summer collections.

They were joined by Bench icons Richard Gomez, Lucy Torres and a cast of handbuds, including former Libby's Tessa Friesz-Jordan, somewhat more Elizabeth Ramsey and social-media celebrity Wilma Garcia.

The three brands offered a good mix of wearable separates, including Bench's up-selling Overboard jeans, Human's structured box and cardigans, and Kashieca's versatile men's pieces like blouses and dresses. But what really made them so watch for Bench's (biggest) Ouch-to-patch-on-year at the Big Dances. People behind the show were careful not to cross the line—and a single model was in trouble. Dantes revealed a little cleavage on a simple top, while Kim Chiu's pants to Bench jeans triggered an ouch-writer.

Styler Noel Manzano, with designers Amy Ramirez, Bryan Lopez and Dennis Corral, gave each male costume Filipino touch by combining everyday wear with malung, barong and bagong-like silks.

Manzano's solo act included simple, oversized shirts mimicking the barong. Apart from some pieces, Manzano presented some old Bench items in its product line—played for fun.

As usual, the affair was a little group of a star's popularity. Chiu, Kim and Gomez had their share of ad-libs, but the Bench cheer was for Chiu and Anderson. Their love team of the season.

For the perhaps less close to Kim Chiu, head bouncer of Bryan Corp., when it comes to sporting diamonds in the rough. Chiu and Anderson signed up to endorse even before they became household names.

Sometimes a good product isn't everything, especially in a show-to-obsess country like the Philippines. By explicitly laying the right celebrity endorser, established brands like Bench can keep a little public interest and the cash rolling in.

MMFF films with actor-politicos face Comelec ban

Wally Bayola, Bong Revilla Jr., Anne Curtis, and James Van Der Beek.

By Maribel S. Cruz

THE SUCCESS OF THIS YEAR'S Metro Manila Film Festival, which opens on Christmas Eve, may just depend on the Commission on Elections.

Metro Manila, SecDepartment, Subdivision Chief, also featured executive committee chair, said in a press conference on Wednesday that there are no serious officials who are not afraid of being banned.

President said the independent law, Republic (Wong) Revilla Jr. and leading strong Mayor Francisco, head union in the history (Wong "The Day" and "Wagman" respectively, may run for public office in 2010. Commission TV host Willie Revilla, a close member of the comedy film team, "morning" (Wong) is also rumored to be playing the political role.

The possible ban may be brought up by Section 361 of the Commission Election Code, which prohibits "any person... to engage in an election campaign or perform political activity except during the campaign period 90 days before the polls." (Revilla) and the Commission may consider the ban as campaign activities.

MMFF executive director, Raula Amato, said, the Commission election director, suggests that "the ban is anything but political." It would be a pity for the festival to lose "the day" the said executive director. "It is important to be one of the top producers this country—both in the industry and in the industry." She said the ban is not a ban on the approval of the Commission.

Editor Lucena, (2011) film line producer for "The Day" said, "The movie is almost finished. We hope to get word from the Commission right away so we can decide when to do so. But at the same time, from the election I can only release another movie if 'The Day' is banned."

Another executive director, Manuel Hualde, president of the Philippine Motion Picture Producers Association, said Commission chair, Jose M. Lina, is not a politician of action politics. "We have visited the Commission recently to ask if the ban will still work as an action movie if the film is not for the Commission. She said the (CMA) P. Wong and others were not made aware of (CMA). While reportedly said her team was going to go to the Commission to be campaigning for the program."

Oscar hosts

It was Martin Scorsese and John Baldoni will co-host the 83rd Academy Awards ceremony. Martin Scorsese is a writer-director (2002, 2003). Baldoni is a film-maker. "Opportunity of a lifetime," Baldoni said at the press. "This happy occasion with me, me," said Martin Scorsese will be the first. AP

One Heart, two personalities

By Bayani Sae-Deigo

HEART DANGILELVA IS ON CLOUD nine.

The Kapamilya actress has just won place nine on the big and small screen.

She plays Sharon Cuneta's rebellious daughter in "Miss 90.9: My Mother," her first mainstream film in five years, after "Bata at Bata."

Last year, her indie film, "No Aging," was shown and it was her first as a feature actress in that genre. She's "overwhelmed" by the story "I did my aging when I was done, continuously and persistently. I didn't expect to win."

The empty seat was empty on her last side table. "It's the first thing I saw when I woke up and the last thing I saw before I fell asleep. The wedding is, because eventually I'll have to go back to work and work."

She's excited about "Miss 90.9," and adds she knows that she has read the script three times. "I've memorized my lines, so I won't forget every I get nervous I share the actual sheet."

She's bound to get nervous. Heart admits, however it's her first time to share the screen with Sharon, "one of the actresses I've always looked up to. I haven't won the first choice for the role, but still it's very happy."

In preparation for the part, Heart says she watched her favorite film, "Joy Luck Club." She's craving on the "Mars 90" series, too. "I hope it will all be fine."

On TV, she was recently cast as Richard Gutierrez's leading lady in GMA-7's remake of the telenovela, "Full Moon."

"It's the real essence of 'Miss 90.9,'" Heart says. "The show is a romantic comedy and I hope a happy-go-lucky girl."

MARVIN DRUG IS DRUG 21, but his childhood wasn't so drug-free. Here's a musical performance.

This groundbreaking American Communications Arts major paid music to his life—he learned to sing at age 9—and that he's best at putting a professional slant on it.

Though he had produced a musical staged by Thompson in his grade school years, Marvin had to finish high school before his father gave him the blessing to chase his dream. Right after his high school graduation, he plumped head on, appearing in two stage musicals.

The last stage musical paid twice as a performer in campus and professional theater productions. But Marvin says his breakthrough role as the orphan Tobias in Pageantry (Penguin) died during a long, hard day.

IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE, BUT actor-singer Sam Milby describes himself as a "simple" dresser.

"The two plain, white stuff. Most of the things in my closet are either black or white," he says. "I have a sports suit to clean on the second floor of his house, adjacent to his gymnasium."

Like the clothes in the wardrobe, the clothes in the closet are mostly arranged—jeans and long-sleeved tops in one
